WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

C.B. Vittal

Dams represent an important asset, although generally not adequately acknowledged. It is our collective mission, that across the modern world, to ensure that dam safety is given the highest priority. The International Commission on Large Dams (ICOLD) and the International Association of Dam Engineers (IAD) are the two main international organizations that provide leadership in this regard. The Commission on Large Dams (ICOLD) is the primary international organization for the world, while the International Association of Dam Engineers (IAD) is the primary international organization for the Americas. The Commission on Large Dams (ICOLD) is the primary international organization for the world, while the International Association of Dam Engineers (IAD) is the primary international organization for the Americas.
